A stream flows weak, uncertain. It winds its way and as it flows it gains strength. Tributaries nourish it and give it power. At last, as a river, it flows with force into the sea.

A class is formed weak, uncertain. It follows its appointed course and with time gains confidence. Education, guidance, and activities enrich it and give it a sense of direction. Then with certainty the once weak class moves to meet its destination—Life. But unlike the river's, its goal is not an end but a beginning.

The Stream of Unity is Our Strength

Purple Iris

Miss Mery C. O'Brien

DEDICATION

Our river flows in a path of beauty and grace, instilled with delicate shadings and rippling motion. The brush that gave it soft lines and exquisite color was held by a true artist. She knows how to shape the beauty of a river, the strength of a class. She has molded our course with hands which produce masterpieces, with a mind which professes a deep wisdom, and with a heart which gives understanding and encouragement.

Her advice and guidance, criticism and praise have given us a sense of direction, a determined path to the sea. Her interest in our progress has been continuous, her loyalty unflinching; her devotion, a never ending gift. Through the efforts of Miss Mery O'Brien we leave the river, prepared to enter the sea with confidence.

Mr. Arthur E. Burke

An underlying current initiates and strengthens the steady flow of every river. It is an intangible force, ever surging, pushing the river onward, yielding to it a power of motivation which promises the attainment of a destination. Flexing with the river's course, it speeds its journey and exerts steady influence on its progress.

A presence seldom seen, but always felt, Superintendent Arthur E. Burke is the current which has speeded our journey.

Mr. George F. Wrightson

A river flows swiftly, it passes quickly by, hardly noticing those standing on its banks.

So we passed through our high school years without time for a second glance at anyone. People and events thus passed so quickly might soon be forgotten. One person, however, will remain a part of us.

We shall not forget the words and the guidance — we shall not lose the memory of Mr. Wrightson. More than a figure or a face, we will remember his pride in our school and the high aims he has instilled in us.

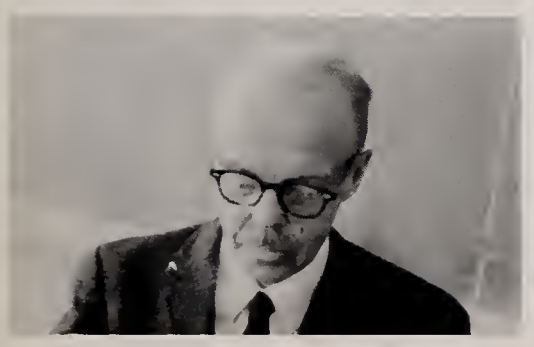
Because he did more than stand on the banks of our river, because he taught us as only he knows how, he is now a part of us . . . and most important, he is the part that will lead us to our greatest achievements.

Mr. Frederick B. Oakes

OUR GUIDE

The course of every river, from its source as a trickling mountain brooklet, to its end as a mighty current feeding the sea, is shaped and guided by some intangible force. Without the hand of fate to chart a path of majesty and power, the river would lack direction and purpose; it would never reach its destination.

Throughout our high school years, our course has been directed not by fate, but by the respected advice of a teacher, counselor, and friend. As we entered high school, a tiny brook, insignificant and weak, he prepared the way for us, guiding, encouraging, shaping us into the powerful river we are today, and leading us into the ocean of life. At every set of rapids, or steep falls, he was there, to answer our questions and chart our course. Without the help of Mr. Frederick Oakes how could our course to the sea have been so fruitful?



GUIDANCE

Just as engineers dam the wildly-rushing rivers and guide them to a more productive course so have our guidance counselors turned our exuberance and enthusiasm toward realistic and worthwhile goals. We greatly appreciate their insight, patience and the time they have spent with us.

As our course branched into many tributaries they helped us choose the routes we would follow to the sea.

THE FACULTY

Along its long and twisting journey to the sea, the surging river encounters countless snags before it emerges into the gulf.

Strong currents are needed to wash away the obstacles that hinder its steady progress. Strong currents such as those exerted by the TFHS faculty.

Their guiding hands chart a secure course to the sea of the world.

Without the strength of these currents, the river would remain stagnate, its course unfulfilled.

IVY POEM

I guide,
Bearing the past and future.
I ascend,
Not knowing what lies ahead.
I struggle,
Growing strong and straight.
I achieve,
Fulfilling my aims for the future.

By Mary Dymerski

CLASS SONG - 1965

words and music
SUSAN HAYNES

A Stream-let we be-gan our course
— Widen-ing then our stream be-came
And now the river's reached the ocean

And o-ver rocks we swirled
A smooth-ly Flow-ing riv-er
But the mem-'ry stays a-live

Be-hind us was a migh-ty Force
And run-ning swift-ly towards it's aim
The riv-er was the mo-tion of

That pushed us to-ward the world.
All cur-rents Joined to-geth-er.
The class of six-ty Five.

OUR

One September day in 1961 a small stream emerged from the mountains and began its long journey to the sea. It was on that day that we, the class of 1965, first entered the halls of Turners Falls High School. We were at first overwhelmed by the swift current of the new curriculum, the activities and, in fact, by the whole new world of high school. But we were immediately made to feel a part of this new world when we were officially welcomed at the Freshman-Senior Reception.

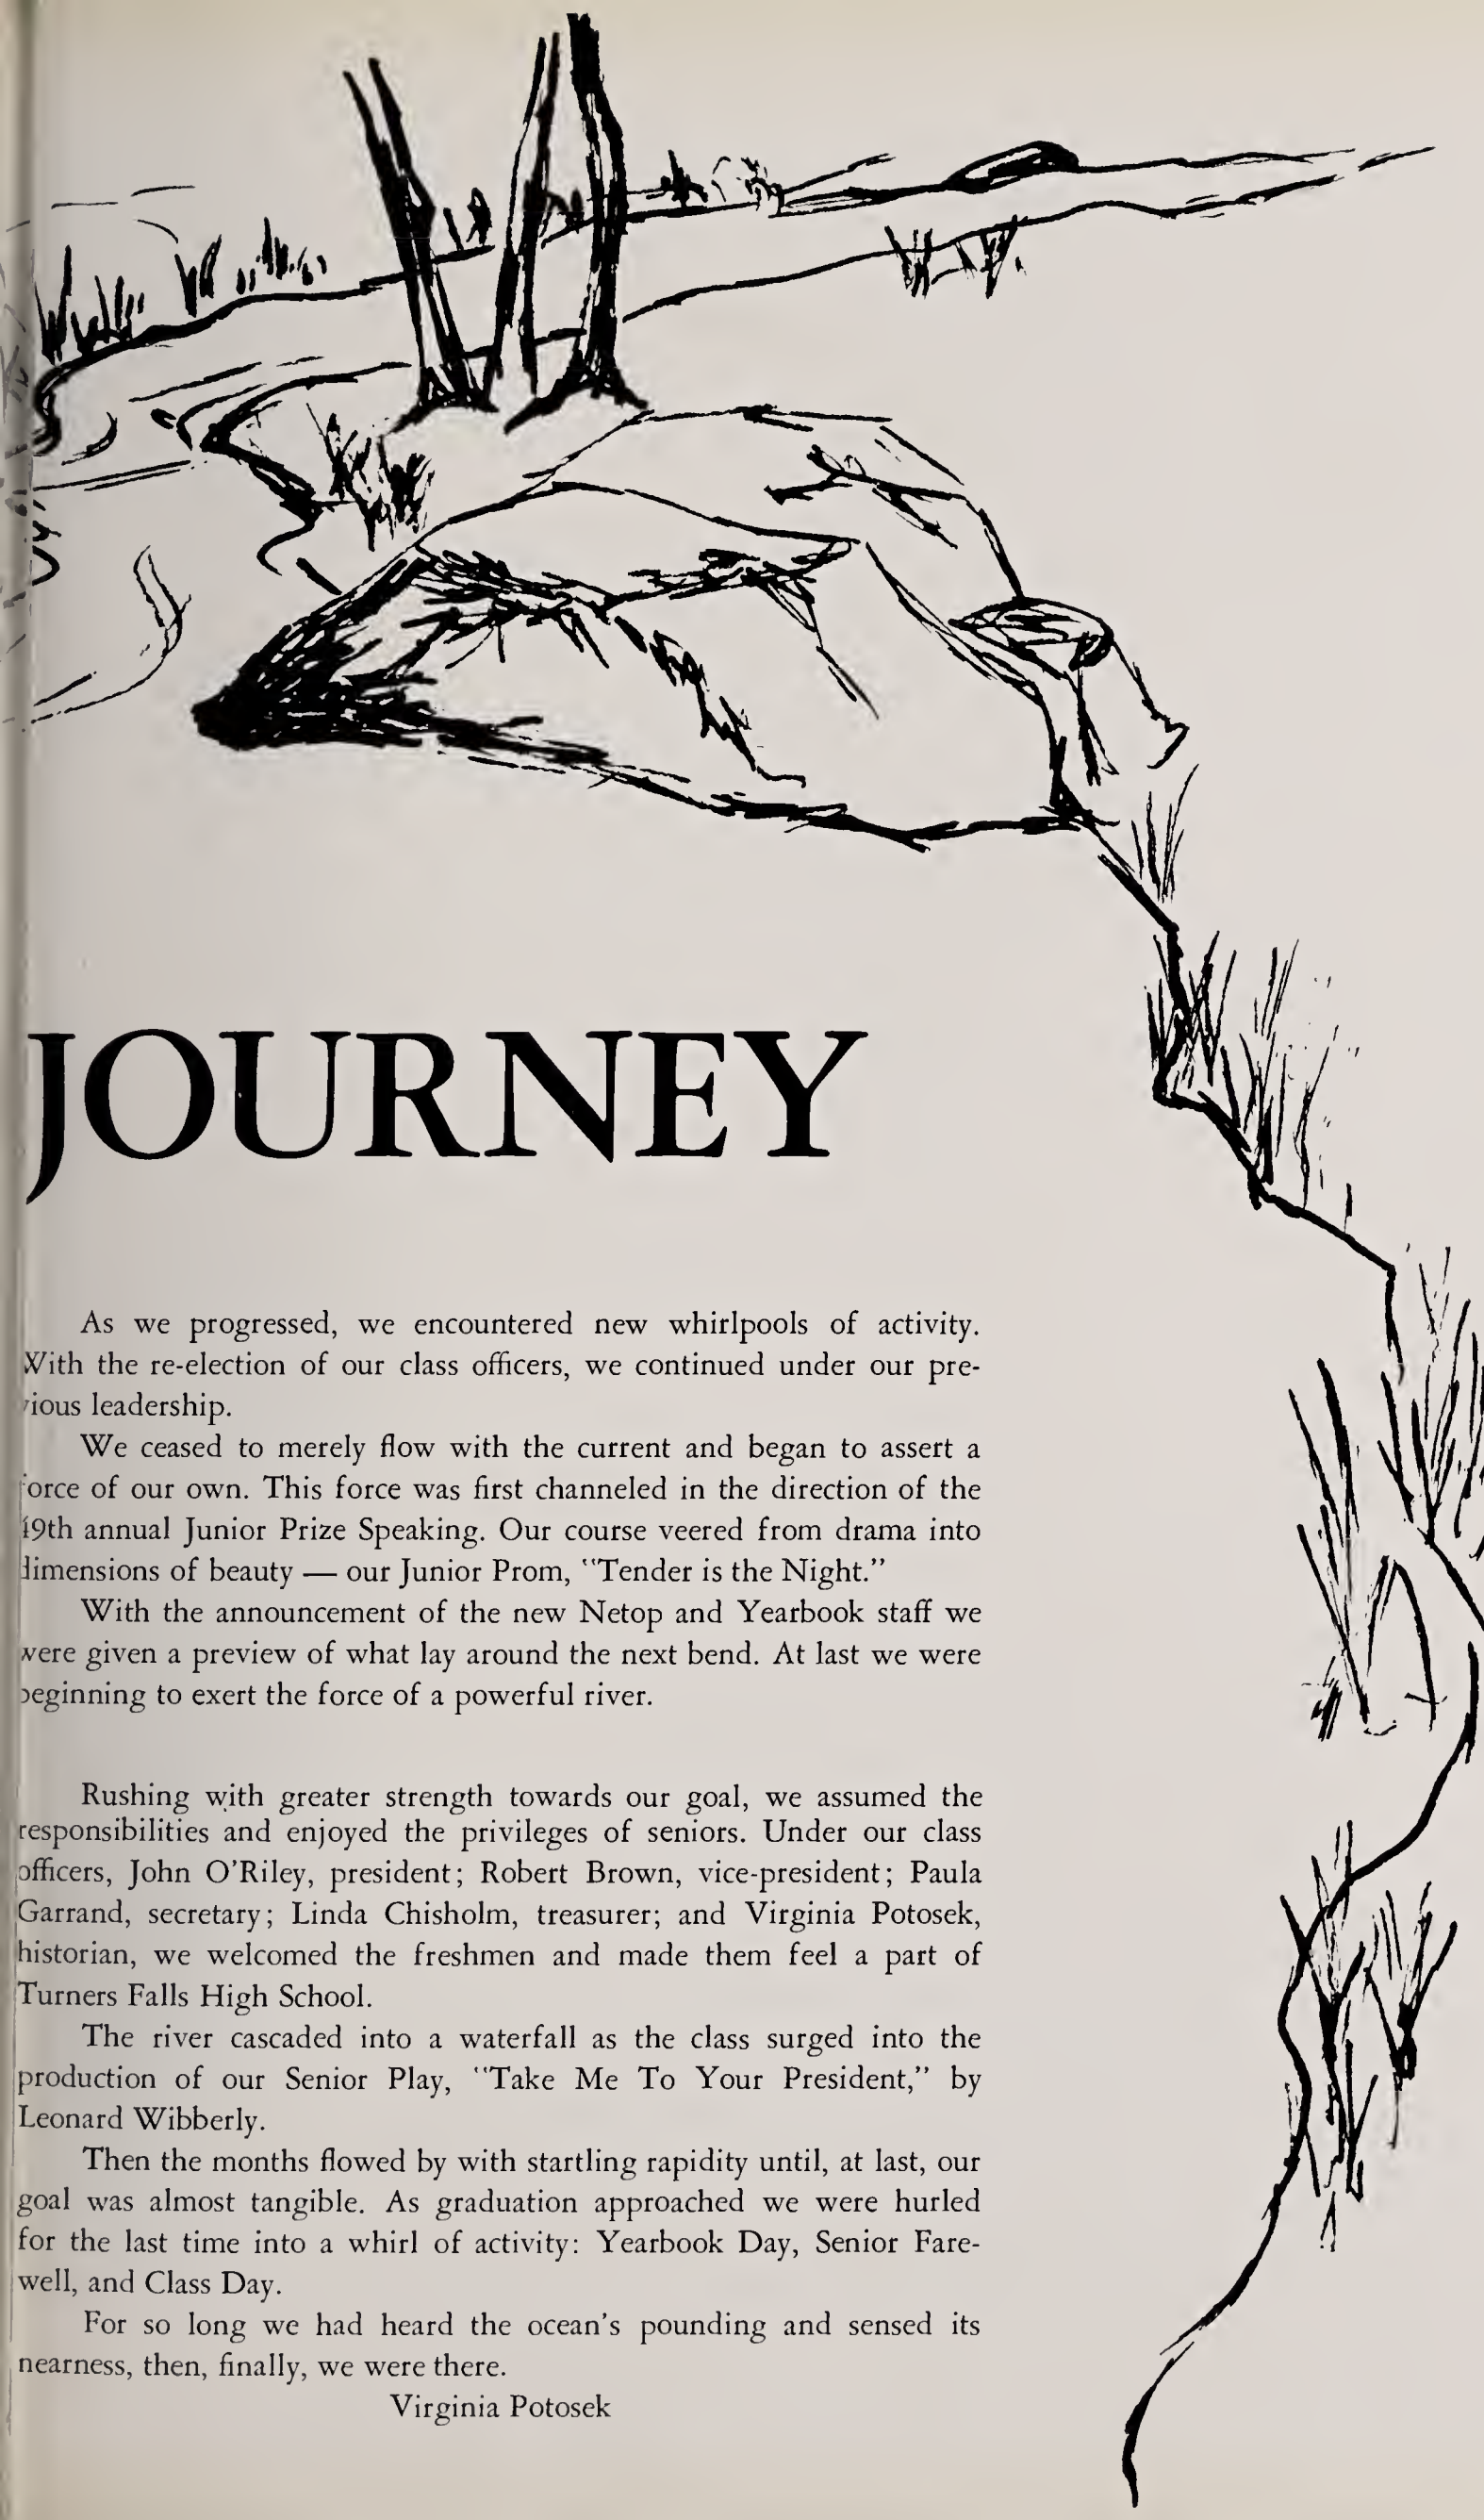
The months passed with surprising speed and it seemed impossible that this course could have ever been strange to us. As our freshman year ended we were impatiently awaiting the next bend in our journey.

The second bend came into sight and it proved to be all that we had anticipated. We found the current more turbulent as we were drawn into many activities. But we had acquired strength and we asserted it when we first elected our own class officers: John O'Riley, president; James Cade, vice-president; Paula Garrand, secretary; Linda Chisholm, treasurer; Virginia Potosek, historian.

As a river has many separate currents, so our class had as many individuals, each with his own interests and objectives — yet unity pervaded. It was a co-operative effort that made possible our Sophomore Social. The gym gaily decorated with a Christmas decor made our first dance a memorable affair.

With the flow of events decisions had to be made, one of which was the selection of our class ring. We proudly wore them as a symbol of our unity and purpose.

We were fast approaching the third bend and our goal became more real to us.



JOURNEY

As we progressed, we encountered new whirlpools of activity. With the re-election of our class officers, we continued under our previous leadership.

We ceased to merely flow with the current and began to assert a force of our own. This force was first channeled in the direction of the 49th annual Junior Prize Speaking. Our course veered from drama into dimensions of beauty — our Junior Prom, "Tender is the Night."

With the announcement of the new Netop and Yearbook staff we were given a preview of what lay around the next bend. At last we were beginning to exert the force of a powerful river.

Rushing with greater strength towards our goal, we assumed the responsibilities and enjoyed the privileges of seniors. Under our class officers, John O'Riley, president; Robert Brown, vice-president; Paula Garrand, secretary; Linda Chisholm, treasurer; and Virginia Potosek, historian, we welcomed the freshmen and made them feel a part of Turners Falls High School.

The river cascaded into a waterfall as the class surged into the production of our Senior Play, "Take Me To Your President," by Leonard Wibberly.

Then the months flowed by with startling rapidity until, at last, our goal was almost tangible. As graduation approached we were hurled for the last time into a whirl of activity: Yearbook Day, Senior Farewell, and Class Day.

For so long we had heard the ocean's pounding and sensed its nearness, then, finally, we were there.

Virginia Potosek

TENDER IS THE NIGHT

On the night of May 1, 1964, we whirled into one of the most important and breathtaking events of our Junior year. A stately, columned mansion and a flower-covered arbor provided a colorful background for the traditional Junior Prom. This setting was accented by the music of Dick Perry's Orchestra. "Tender is the Night" is truly the phrase which best describes our Junior Prom.

Pro Merito Society

Every river has a set of rapids, strong, swift currents which push with greater force and momentum toward the ocean. Like these currents the members of the Pro Merito Society have exerted their energies to gain outstanding scholastic achievement. They have maintained an 85% or better average in all their subjects throughout the four years of high school. The members of the society are: Francis Simanski, (President); Karen Sibley, (Secretary); Karen Bartlett, Robert Brown, James Cade, Mary DeMeo, Martha Drinzek, Ardice Dube, Mary Dymerski, Betsy Fiske, Robert Flagg, Paula Garrand, Nancy Gmyrek, Susan Haynes, Wayne Jefferson, Patricia Kirk, Linda Lambert, Beverly Magdycz, William Nagle, John O'Riley, Christine Perry, Lorraine Peters, Maria Plaza, Peter Rogers, Patricia Ryan, Mary Shea, Robert Trudel, Linda Waynelovich, Evelyn Welcome, Paula Whiteman.

The Old Lady Shows Her Medals

As the first dramatic production of the year we presented "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" for the Columbus Day Assembly. The setting is war-time England where Mrs. Dowey (Muriel Rubin) seeks to impress her friends and fellow scrub-women, Mrs. Haggity (Evelyn Welcome), Mrs. Tully (Sandra Hoar) and Mrs. Mickleham (Karen Sibley) with stories about her "son" Kenneth. The Reverend Mr. Willings (Jerry Sears) interrupts her tea and announces that the real Kenneth Dowey (David Grader) is arriving home on leave. When Kenneth meets Mrs. Dowey they are cold and hostile at first, but soon they grow to care for each other very deeply and Kenneth adopts Mrs. Dowey as his mother.

The World Tomorrow

"The World Tomorrow", a one-act play presented at our Veterans' Day Assembly, was concerned with the anxieties of youth over the maintaining of international peace.

After replacing his girl friend (Jean Kelly) on a school panel concerned with post-war relations, Bert Hothrop (Gordon Walsh) is faced with a difficult decision whether or not to follow the strict policy of his grandfather, Senator James Lothrop (Albert Siciak) or the lenient advice of his father, Stanley, (Francis Simanski) who died in the war. When the dead Stanley pays a visit to his family his son's indecision is dissolved. The apparition helps strengthen the path of Stanley's wife Kay (Paula Garrand), daughter Amy (Cynthia Lenois), and his shell-shocked brother Malcolm (John Bourbeau).

Dramatics Coach:
Mr. Maurice Donovan.

Light Competition

At our Christmas Assembly, "Light Competition", a delightful satire on yuletide home decorators was presented.

Mr. Benton (Robert Judd) and his neighbor Mr. Reynolds (Edward Craig) have long been competing for the prize given for the best Christmas decorations. Mr. Benton's son (Robert Bray) and daughter (Linda Markol) decide that the annual feud has persisted long enough and bring the two together by forging letters. The situation is resolved much to the relief of Mrs. Benton (Priscilla Chisholm), Mr. Benton's sister (Charlene Golonka) and the handyman (Robert Parker) and Bobby's girl friend (Laurel Crowell).

Student Director of "Take Me To Your President" and "Light Competition": Karen Sibley.

TEEN SCENE

Recorder-Gazette

A hard-driving staff advised by Mr. Oakes and under the editorship of Paula Whiteman, kept the Recorder-Gazette up to date on T F H S activities. Editorials, features, personality sketches, and news items written by Teen Sceners were augmented by photographer Dave Tela.

ALTER EGO

The waves surge and splash on the sandy beach, revealing hidden treasures. Like these waves, the fourth volume of our literary magazine "Alter Ego" revealed much talent among the student body. With the advice of Mr. Oakes, the editors: Paula Garrand; Betsy Fiske; Robert Trudel, and Patty Ryan, together with staff members, selected short stories, poems, essays, and literary criticism from contributed material. This year's edition was the first to contain samples of art work submitted by students.
